ABSTRACT (upto 300 words)

The paper explores the HRM challenges of local businesses and services versus the corporate sector in Pakistan. It claims that local organizations have poor HRM practices due to inadequate training, inflexible behavior and obsolete structure. It uses the banking sector as a case study of a mature business with formal and effective HRM strategies that can help overcome organizational problems. It divides HRM practices into informal and formal HR. It uses a qualitative method based on questionnaires answered by experts from various institutions.
